

Working for the success of our young people

Hōkūpaʻa is a partnership of diverse community members with a shared intention to positively impact education outcomes for students, strengthen social and emotional wellness, and increase community networks for a thriving West Hawaii.

Post High School Options

This is not a one-size-fits-all society, and there isn't one answer for all graduates. A four-year university may be the best path for some. For others, perhaps not. Knowing your options will hopefully help you or your student consider what to do after high school graduation.

Check out these West Hawai'i vocational training options for students who choose not to take the college path.

You do have choices when it comes to remaining in West Hawai'i after high school graduation.
